The appellant has preferred this appeal for enhancement of award as only a sum of Rs.1,000/- has been awarded as compensation by learned claims Tribunal in claim case No. 43/2003.

From perusal of the impugned award and particularly the injury report of the appellant, it appears that the appellant has sustained two minor abrasions on the left leg and right hand. Considering the injuries sustained by the appellant which are minor in nature, learned claims Tribunal has awarded Rs.1,000/- towards compensation as except the injury report no other evidence was produced by the appellant/claimant before the Tribunal.

Learned counsel for the appellant submits that it is a too meager amount and in the facts and circumstances of the case, adequate compensation ought to have been awarded.

On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents No. 2 and 3 support the impugned award.

Taking into consideration the fact that the appellant was prosecuting the claim petition before the claims Tribunal and no
